Coloradans should think college savings during tax season

CollegelInvest provides ways to invest this year's tax refund, plan for 2011 return

Whether you are expecting a tax refund this year or looking for deductions for next year's tax return, a CollegelInvest 529 college savings plan is a tax-friendly way to save for higher education.

As a division of the Colorado Department of Higher Education, CollegelInvest offers the only 529 college savings plans that provide a dollar-for-dollar Colorado state income tax deduction for all contributions. If you do not currently have a 529 plan it is not too late to plan for next year's tax return. Any contributions made during 2010 are deductible on 2010 returns.

"For those expecting a tax refund this year, think about placing it in a 529 plan. It is a great way to make your refund go farther," said Angela Baier of CollegelInvest. "A college education provides a great return on investment."

CollegelInvest 529 college savings plans can be opened with as little as $25 and contributions as little as $15. Every little bit helps and small contributions each month can add up over time.

Money saved through 529 college savings plans can be used nationwide at any eligible public or private college, university or vocational school for a variety of higher education expenses such as tuition, fees, certain room and board, and required supplies.

Parents of young children are not the only ones who can benefit from the tax advantages of a 529 plan. Students saving for their own higher education expenses can benefit as well. Even small amounts saved in a 529 plan can be used for books and school supplies.

CollegelInvest 529 plans have federal and state tax benefits. Investments grow free from federal and Colorado taxes and, if you use your account for qualified expenses, earnings are exempt from federal and Colorado taxes.

"The tax benefits of a 529 plan are a nice incentive for families to start thinking about saving and paying for college," added Baier.
